

FOLK ARCHITECTURE MONUMENT

KOŠICE 2013 / SLOVAK REPUBLIC

A unique project by the Slovak visual artist TOMÁŠ DŽADOŇ. Its first version dates back to 2006, and gradually the idea of a work of art to be set up in a public space in Košice took shape.

The Folk Architecture Monument consists of three classic log cottages situated on the roof of a classic prefabricated housing block on one of the largest housing estates in Košice.

This iconic artistic gesture represents for the author a deeper reality, in which many inhabitants of Košice and elsewhere have grown up and lived. Let us not forget that around half the inhabitants of Slovakia live in prefabricated housing blocks. The project is an opportunity and an inspiration for a new perception of one's own history, of which housing estate architecture is an intrinsic part.

The Folk Architecture Monument has the potential to be a unique type of monument. It is not a monument to a historic person, event or memory. It involves the present we have lived through, taken symbolically: the housing block is us.

The inhabitants of the Monument will become active co-artists in the project. It is a highly attractive work of art for the public at large, too, not only for a circle of interested professionals. Its monumental size and installation outside the over-exposed historic centre of Košice give it a human, citizen's and public aspect.

A portrait of Tomáš Džadoň, a man with short brown hair and a slight smile, wearing a dark grey hoodie. He is looking towards the camera. The background is a blurred outdoor setting with a dark wooden building with a red roof, green trees, and a paved path.
